RVing offers an affordable, fun vacation

In This Issue

Show Details

Spring is here, and if you're like me, that means your mind is turning to the open road. Time to shake off the winter doldrums, get out of the office and rejuvenate.

Still, vacations can dig deep into the wallet. While there are signs that the economy is rebounding, times are still a little tight for most Americans. But that doesn't mean you can't take a break to recharge the old batteries. RVing is still one of the most economical ways to get away. In fact, a study for the Recreation Vehicle Industry Association shows that typical family RV camping vacations are 27 to 61 percent less expensive on a per-day basis than other types of vacations.

They're cheaper than traveling in a car and staying in a hotel. They're cheaper than getting on a plane. They're cheaper than taking a cruise. And, an RV vacation is as satisfying, if not more so, than the more expensive ways to travel.

Before you hit the road this year, make sure you get your rig outfitted and check out the latest models at our spring show in Pleasanton. The 18th Annual Spring RV Show

and Sale will bring together hundreds of new and used RVs, accessories and services, and allow you to speak to a host of dealers in one convenient location. Good deals will abound at the Alameda County Fairgrounds May 14-23. So come by and get ready to roll.

Happy RVing!
